Susan Robinson
President & Chief Executive Officer
Targeted Genetics, Inc.
1100 Olive Way
Suite 100
Seattle, WA 98101

Dear Ms. Robinson:

We are the beneficial owners of 1,988,000 or 9% of the companies' common stock. As one of the largest shareholders of Targeted Genetics, Inc. (the "Company" or "Targeted") we are extremely concerned that the Company and its' management will not do their utmost to ensure that the significant value inherent in the Company's intellectual property is realized and will accrue to its' shareholders.

It has been more than seven months since the Company's January 13th, 2010 press release whereby you made the decision to delist the common stock and continue to reduce personnel costs following the sale of the manufacturing assets of the Company to Genzyme. While certain personnel were let go, there continues to exist a significant amount of overhead which is non-productive. It is our opinion that the time has long since come for the Company to move convincingly to protect shareholders. We do not believe at this late date that shareholders are benefiting from a continued "wait and see" approach, while incurring significant overhead without owning any corresponding operating assets.

In fact, this past April, to the detriment of shareholders, you were personally issued 750,000 shares of common stock as part of an agreement with the Company for your continued employment and the Company's CFO was granted 500,000 shares. Shareholders were further diluted by a grant two months later to the two Board members who approved your grants; in total Targeted issued 1,370,000 shares. This is more than 6.5% of the total outstanding shares of the Company to reward 4 individuals, none of whom work full-time for the Company! This is precisely the kind of self-dealing, value destroying behavior we want to ensure does not continue.

Instead of continuing with the Company's current approach which has resulted in extraneous expenses and significant dilution, we believe the Company should engage in a structured sale process whereby the Company could be sold for fair value - which we believe far exceeds the current market capitalization. To the extent that such a sale process cannot be consummated by years end, the Company should be placed into a liquidating trust in order that all expected cash flows are returned to shareholders and not spent on salaries, R&D or other expenses; considering the current state of the Company such a course would only benefit management and not its' current shareholders.

We believe the above options are the best course for the Company as the opportunities for both near- and long-term cash flow from the Company's two marquee intellectual property assets are excellent, as delineated below:

MYDICAR

MYDICAR is a gene therapy currently being developed by Celladon Corp. (“Celladon”) to treat advanced heart failure utilizing Targeted proprietary AAV-1 technology. Over 500,000 Americans are diagnosed with heart failure every year, and there is currently no treatment for those patients. Presently, without a transplant the vast majority of heart failure patients die within 5-7 years. If MYDICAR is ultimately approved for use by the FDA, Celladon would be required to pay the Company a royalty of 10% of sales, subject to certain reductions in some cases. Celladon is also required to make milestone payments totaling $20 million (including $5 million upon the commencement of a Phase III trial for MYDICAR) as well as a percentage of either a sale or partnership of MYDICAR.

On Sunday, May 30th, 2010, Celladon presented at the European Society of Cardiology (“ESCO”) in Berlin 6-month data from CUPID, its’ Phase II trial of MYDICAR. The CUPID trial was a randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study to assess the efficacy and safety of MYDICAR. Locations involved in the trial CUPID included highly respected cardiology centers such as the University of Chicago Medical Center and Columbia University in New York City. The data was presented by the lead investigator on the trial, Dr. Barry Greenberg, Professor of Medicine at the University of California, San Diego, and a past president of the Heart Failure Society of America. A critique of data was given by Dr. Zeiher of the University of Frankfurt. Copies of the slides of both presentations can be found at the following website :

<http://www.escardio.org/congresses/HF2010/slides-trials/Pages/CUPIDTrial.aspx>

The study results showed that that there was a reduction in patients treated with high dose of MYDICAR in cardiovascular events as defined by death, the need for left ventricular assist device (LVAD) or cardiac transplant, worsening of heart failure or heart failure related hospitalizations, which translated into a 50% risk-reduction in favor of high dose MYDICAR. Furthermore, the mean duration of hospitalization in the MYDICAR high dose group during the six-month period was 0.2 days/patient, a substantially shorter period of time than the 2.1 days/patient of the placebo treated group.

Based on our due diligence at the ESCO conference and our confidence that the CUPID trial met and exceeded its’ endpoints, we believe it is very likely that Celladon will initiate a Phase III trial for MYDICAR within the next 6-9 months. This would result in Celladon having to pay Targeted the agreed upon $5 million Phase II initiation milestone payment.

Over the long-term, MYDICAR has the potential to generate a staggering amount of royalties payable to Targeted. We have modeled a successful Phase III trial and launch of MYDICAR, and our medium-case analysis of cash flows from 2012-2015 yield payments to Targeted in excess of $100,000,000.

Glybera

Glybera is a gene therapy treatment developed by Amsterdam Molecular Technologies (“AMT”) for the treatment of Lipoprotein Lipase Deficiency (“LPLD”), an extremely rare condition associated with significant morbidity and mortality. AMT has completed a number of trials of Glybera and is awaiting approval from the EU. Management of AMT, during a recent presentation at the BIO CEO & Investor Conference in New York City, indicated that they expect approval of Glybera in the early part of 2011.

Glybera, similar to MYDICAR, relies upon Targeted’s patented AAV-1 technology. Although you have not publically released either the size of the milestone payment or the percentage of royalties payable by AMT to Targeted, after conversations with both AMT and industry participants we believe a conservative figure is $1.25m upon approval and 3.5% royalties.

While the addressable market is small as only 300-350 patients exist in Europe, management of AMT is on record as stating that they expect to charge something approaching $750,000 per patient. Assuming AMT reaches its projections, royalties and/or milestones payable to Targeted over the next decade could exceed $6,000,000.

KOYOTE TRADING LLC

Given all of the above and to the extent a sale does not occur by the end of the year, it is our opinion that there is a very high likelihood that the Company will generate at least $6.25 million in milestone and/or royalty revenues in the first half of 2011. Our position, should this occur, is very clear: at least $5.25 million, or approximately 24 cents a share, should be returned to shareholders. The simplest and most tax-efficient way to do so is to transition the Company into a liquidating trust. Based upon your public statements, Targeted should end 2010 with approximately $2.8 million in cash. By moving towards a liquidating trust and ceasing all non-essential (i.e. expenses not related to maintaining our patent portfolio) Targeted can maintain this cash position and begin returning to shareholders virtually all cash flows arising from its' intellectual property in 2011.

Transitioning the Company into a liquidating trust gives current shareholders the confidence that Targeted will not engage in any future dilutive stock issuances or value-destroying usages of its' remaining cash position. Both have been stumbling blocks that have plagued Targeted in the past. Over the past twenty years Targeted burnt through more than $300,000,000 in capital developing products that failed to reach the marketplace - and it's worth noting that a good portion of that cash burn occurred on your watch as CEO.

We sincerely hope you agree with us that Targeted's cash flows belong to its' shareholders. If that is the case, then we are more than willing to work with you to implement the above plan and creating value for all shareholders. If however, you maintain your current "wait and see" approach and continue on a path of enriching management at the expense of shareholders then we intend to vigorously contest the current Board members at the next election and will ensure individuals are elected who will take their duties of care towards shareholders more seriously than the current Board has to date.

The stakes could not be higher. We cannot be more excited about the potential for Glybera to produce revenues to Targeted in 2011, and for MYDICAR to contribute enormous potential royalties over the medium to long term. Again, I reiterate my interest in working together and not at cross-purposes. Based upon our phone conversations with you to date, it seems to us you feel strongly about creating shareholder value. If that is the case than I look forward to working together to unlock the incredible value we feel exists within Targeted.
