Ratings Review: As a result of Moody's Investors Service (Moody's) and Standard & Poor's (S&P) government support assumptions on certain U.S. financial institutions, The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation's ratings by Moody's and S&P benefit from one notch of lift. Similarly, The Bank of New York Mellon's and BNY Mellon, N.A.'s ratings benefit from two notches of lift from Moody's and one notch of lift from S&P. In separate statements in June 2013 and August 2013, both S&P and Moody's indicated that they are reconsidering their inclusion of assumed government support in their ratings on the eight U.S. bank holding companies that they view as having high systemic importance, including The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation.

On July 2, 2013, Moody's placed the long-term ratings of three large U.S. trust and custody banks on review for downgrade, including The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation. The short-term debt and deposit ratings for all three banks, including The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation were affirmed at both the bank and holding company levels. On September 25, 2013, Moody's extended its review and indicated it would consider both the standalone and government support ratings on the U.S. trust and custody banks simultaneously. Moody's indicated that the review will focus on the long-term profitability challenges facing these very highly-rated institutions, which are driven by aggressive pricing of all three banks' core custody products and services. According to Moody's, the review will also examine the banks' ability to generate more revenue from custody-related services and cut costs, and consider the level of the banks' dependence on ancillary revenues that have come under pressure. For further discussion on the impact of a credit rating downgrade, see Note 17 of the Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements in Part I, Item 1 in The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation's Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q for the quarter ended September 30, 2013. The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation anticipates that Moody's may announce the results of its review in the short term.
