Item 7.01. Regulation FD Disclosure

Hi-Crush Partners LP (NYSE:HCLP), or “Hi-Crush”, provided the following update regarding the incident that occurred at the Company’s Whitehall facility on May 21, 2018.

“On Monday, a bulldozer operated by a contractor from Gerke Excavating, Inc. became submerged in a detention pond at our Whitehall facility,” said Scott Preston, Chief Operating Officer of Hi-Crush. “Other workers on the scene promptly called emergency responders and immediately implemented our safety and rescue plan. This included reducing the amount of water in the pond, which allowed for a life-saving rescue. We salute the efforts of all those who were involved in the operator’s rescue, are proud of our team’s quick thinking, and are grateful that he was able to return to his family.

“The emergency release of an estimated 10 million gallons of water was necessary in the successful effort to rescue the bulldozer operator. The water that was released contained silt, clay and sand. As part of the regulatory framework governing our industry, we routinely conduct analysis of water discharged from our facility, and historically those tests have shown no indication of substances that are harmful to wildlife, humans or the environment.

“We have initiated a clean-up effort in consultation with the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and local officials. This includes installing sediment and run off barriers to contain and capture the silt; repairing the berm on the pond to prevent further drainage; starting the clean-up of neighboring properties; and planning appropriate restoration efforts in consultation with DNR staff and our own expert consultants.

“The DNR has taken dissolved oxygen samples upstream from the point where the silt initially entered the river, and from areas within Independence, Arcadia, Dodge, and the Mississippi River, both before and after the silt plume passed through. The DNR has informed us that they did not find any significant difference in dissolved oxygen.

“As always, Hi-Crush is focused on safety and is committed to being a responsible community partner. We are performing the necessary clean-up and restoration efforts to mitigate any effects from the water release. The incident did not affect our operations or delivery to customers, and is not expected to have a material financial impact.

Hi-Crush will continue to work with the DNR, local officials and our neighbors to address concerns in a thoughtful and comprehensive manner.”
