Email from NYSE Euronext CEO Duncan Niederauer to NYSE Euronext employees (December 22, 2011):

To my NYSE Euronext colleagues:

Before heading into the holiday weekend, I just wanted to provide a quick update on a few developments that occurred this week with regard to our proposed merger.

As you may have seen in the press a few days ago, we offered antitrust regulators a three-year moratorium on fee increases should we be allowed to proceed with the merger. Under this agreement, we would not raise published trading and clearing prices for derivatives on NYSE Liffe and Deutsche Boerse's Eurex market. This offer has been described positively in the media and we are hopeful that it will have an equally positive impact on the policymakers who will decide on the merger.

Also, today we issued a press release confirming that the Antitrust Division of the United States Department of Justice (DOJ) has cleared the proposed combination between NYSE Euronext and Deutsche Boerse. The DOJ is allowing the combination to proceed, while requiring the sale of the DB's minority stake in Direct Edge.

Both of these developments indicate continued momentum for our deal. There have been some speculative media reports the past couple days, but we expect things to be relatively quiet from now until early January. After the holidays, we will commence our final push to convince the College of Commissioners that our proposed deal is good for Europe and does not impede competition.

In the meantime, thanks again for your support and please accept my best wishes for a relaxing holiday with your family and friends.

See you out there!

Duncan
