Dear Shareholder:

This annual report for Templeton Dragon Fund covers the fiscal year ended December 31, 2014.

Your Fund's Goal and Main Investments

The Fund seeks long-term capital appreciation by investing at least 45% of its total assets in equity securities of China companies.

Economic and Market Overview

China's economy, as measured by gross domestic product (GDP), grew an estimated 7.4% in 2014, which was largely in line with the government's 7.5% target.¹ China's economy stabilized in 2014 as fiscal and monetary stimulus measures implemented in the year's second half gained traction. Strength in production and consumer spending offset weakness in fixed-asset investment, which was hindered by the government's efforts to cool the property market. Domestic demand continued to account for a greater portion of gross domestic product, as the government's market friendly policies supported new economic drivers.

The People's Bank of China (PBOC) implemented various measures to support economic growth after tightening liquidity early in the year to curb lending by banks and non-bank institutions. These measures were initially selective, such as the reduction of the cash reserve requirement ratio for banks serving rural borrowers and smaller companies to stimulate lending in targeted sectors. In November, the PBOC broadened its approach by cutting its benchmark interest rate for the first time since July 2012. With inflationary pressures trending downward, policymakers may have the flexibility to implement additional measures to support the economy.

Investors were generally optimistic about Chinese stocks despite concerns about the U.S. Federal Reserve Board's (Fed's) timing of interest rate increases, moderating global economic growth, geopolitical tensions in several regions, the devaluation of many currencies against the U.S. dollar and a sharp decline in crude oil prices. Chinese stocks benefited from the government's fiscal stimulus measures and the PBOC's pro-growth monetary policy, as well as from the growing momentum to reform state-owned enterprises and the launch of the Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect program. Further supporting Chinese stocks were the Bank of Japan's and European Central Bank's monetary easing and the Fed's accommodative policy.

Geographic Breakdown

Based on Total Net Assets as of 12/31/14

Greater China stocks, as measured by the MSCI Golden Dragon Index, delivered a total return of +8.06% for the 12 months ended December 31, 2014.² The MSCI Taiwan Index generated a +10.05% total return, compared with +8.26% for the MSCI China Index and +5.07% for the MSCI Hong Kong Index.²

Investment Strategy

Our investment strategy employs a fundamental, value-oriented, long-term approach. In selecting companies for investment, we will consider overall growth prospects, competitive positions in export markets, technologies, research and development, productivity, labor costs, and raw material costs and sources. Additional considerations include profit margins, returns on investment, capital resources, government regulation, management and other factors in comparison to other companies around the world that we believe are comparable.

Our approach to selecting investments emphasizes fundamental, company-by-company analysis (rather than broader analyses of specific industries or sectors of the economy), to construct an action list from which we make our buy decisions. Although we will consider historical value measures, the primary factor in selecting securities for investment by the Fund will be the company's current price relative to its long-term earnings potential.

Performance Overview

The Fund posted cumulative total returns of +9.74% in market price terms and +7.86% in net asset value terms for the 12 months under review. You can find the Fund's long-term performance data in the Performance Summary on page 5.

Performance data represent past performance, which does not guarantee future results. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate, and you may have a gain or loss when you sell your shares. Current performance may differ from figures shown.

Manager's Discussion

During the 12 months under review, the largest contributor to the Fund's absolute performance was our investment in an offshore China fund managed by our team, as China's domestic A-share market surged in late 2014, resulting from the PBOC's surprise interest rate cut in November and the effective easing of loan and deposit regulations to boost the economy.³ The government's stimulus measures and commitment to stable growth further supported the A-share market. Chinese stocks listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, however, did not perform as well because of foreign investors' focus on less positive developments such as weak industrial survey data and subdued export growth. Demand for A shares, resulting from the Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect program, may also have played a role in the divergent performances.

Other notable contributors included TSMC (Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Co.) and Bank of China, whose stocks generated strong returns during the 12-month period.

TSMC, the world's largest independent integrated circuit foundry, showed strong growth in the past few years, resulting from increased demand for chips used in mobile devices such as smartphones and tablets. Strong corporate results, management updates suggesting rising market share and progress in the commercialization of the most advanced technology supported the company's share price performance.

Bank of China, one of the country's leading commercial banks, enjoyed strong share price performance in November and December as it reported better-than-expected operating results. The bank also benefited from the PBOC's monetary easing programs, including its interest rate cut and a softening of the terms of regulated loan-to-deposit ratio limits that led to market speculation about a possibility for further easing measures.

In contrast, key detractors from the Fund's absolute performance included CNOOC, China Resources Enterprise and SJM Holdings.

CNOOC is one of China's biggest oil and gas exploration and production companies. The company reported better-than-expected first-half 2014 earnings results. However, lower oil prices in the year's second half pressured energy companies' share prices, with production-oriented companies such as CNOOC impacted worse than those with more emphasis on refining and marketing. The decision of the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries to maintain oil production levels despite a global oversupply led prices to fall more than 40% in 2014's fourth quarter, further hurting share price performance of energy companies globally.

China Resources Enterprise is primarily engaged in retail, beer and beverage, and food businesses in China and Hong Kong. Weakness in the Chinese retail and beer market, as well as losses from the company's joint venture with Tesco, one of the U.K.'s major grocery retailers, negatively affected operations, leading China Resources to report a net loss for the third quarter. The government's anti-extravagance policy and competition from the e-commerce industry likely affected the performance of the company's retail business.

SJM Holdings, a Hong Kong-listed, Macau-based gaming and entertainment company, lost ground in 2014 after strong performance in 2013, as the Chinese government's anti-corruption and anti-extravagance policies negatively affected casino revenues. Macau's annual gambling revenues declined in 2014 for the first time since China liberalized the administrative region's casinos in 2001.

Although the Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect program was designed to give foreign investors an opportunity to access China's domestic Shanghai A-share market, certain regulatory issues exist that currently make it unattractive for funds such as Templeton Dragon Fund to invest through that program. Nonetheless, in April we invested in the China A-share market through an existing offshore fund managed by our team and previously approved by Chinese authorities to invest in the China A-share market. Driving this investment was our belief that China's domestic market could provide Templeton Dragon Fund with an opportunity to gain exposure to industries such as traditional medicine, biotechnology and software that may not be well represented in the Hong Kong and China equity markets currently accessible to foreign investors.

During the year, we made selective purchases in technology, food products, shipping, apparel and automobile companies because of valuations we considered to be attractive. Key investments included a new position in Tencent Holdings, one of China's major Internet and mobile phone value-added services providers. We also increased our positions in Uni-President China Holdings, one of China's leading beverage and instant noodle manufacturers, and Dongfeng Motor Group, a Chinese commercial and passenger vehicle manufacturer that has joint ventures with international automobile manufacturers, including Nissan, Honda and Peugeot Citroen.

Conversely, we conducted some sales in Hong Kong, Taiwan, and China H and Red Chip shares as we raised funds for investment in domestic A shares and for dividend payments and sought to better position the Fund in stocks we considered to be more attractively valued within our investment universe.⁴ We reduced holdings largely in the energy, consumer staples, telecommunication services and industrials sectors.⁵ Key sales included Chinese automobile manufacturer Great Wall Motor, Chinese cement producer Anhui Conch Cement and coal producer China Shenhua Energy.

4. China H denotes shares of China-incorporated, Hong Kong Stock Exchange-listed companies with most businesses in China. Red Chip denotes shares of Hong Kong

Stock Exchange-listed companies substantially owned by Chinese mainland state entities, with significant exposure to China.

5. The energy sector comprises oil, gas and consumable fuels in the Consolidated SOI. The consumer staples sector comprises beverages, food and staples retailing, and food products in the Consolidated SOI. The telecommunication services sector comprises diversified telecommunication services and wireless telecommunication services in the Consolidated SOI. The industrials sector comprises commercial services and supplies, electrical equipment, industrial conglomerates, machinery, marine, road and rail, and transportation infrastructure in the Consolidated SOI.

Moreover, we reduced our positions in some of the Fund's larger holdings, including Hong Kong-based Asian retailer Dairy Farm International Holdings; Chinese energy companies Sinopec (China Petroleum and Chemical), CNOOC and PetroChina; and mobile services provider China Mobile to raise funds and promote diversification. However, we maintained a positive long-term view on these companies.

Thank you for your continued participation in Templeton Dragon Fund. We look forward to serving your future investment needs.

Performance data represent past performance, which does not guarantee future results. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate, and you may have a gain or loss when you sell your shares. Current performance may differ from figures shown.

All investments involve risks, including possible loss of principal. Special risks are associated with foreign investing, including currency volatility, economic instability and political developments of countries where the Fund invests. Emerging markets involve heightened risks related to the same factors, in addition to those associated with their relatively small size and lesser liquidity. There are special risks associated with investments in China, Hong Kong and Taiwan, including exposure to currency fluctuations, less liquidity, expropriation, confiscatory taxation, nationalization and exchange control regulations (including currency blockage), inflation and rapid fluctuations in inflation and interest rates. In addition, investments in Taiwan could be adversely affected by its political and eco-conomic relationship with China. Because the Fund invests its assets primarily in companies in a specific region, the Fund is subject to greater risks of adverse developments in that region and/or the surrounding regions than a fund that is more broadly diversified geographically. Political, social or economic disruptions in the region, even in countries in which the Fund is not invested, may adversely affect the value of securities held by the Fund. Also, as a nondiversified investment company investing in China companies, the Fund may invest in a relatively small number of issuers and, as a result, be subject to a greater risk of loss with respect to its portfolio securities. The Fund is actively managed but there is no guarantee that the manager's investment decisions will produce the desired results.

1. The Fund has a fee waiver associated with its investments in a Franklin Templeton money fund, contractually guaranteed through at least its current fiscal year-end.

Fund investment results reflect the fee waiver, to the extent applicable; without this reduction, the results would have been lower.

2. Total return calculations represent the cumulative and average annual changes in value of an investment over the periods indicated.

3. Assumes reinvestment of distributions based on net asset value.

4. Assumes reinvestment of distributions based on the dividend reinvestment and cash purchase plan.

Important Notice to Shareholders

Change in Non-Fundamental Investment Policy

The Fund's Board of Directors approved an amendment to the Fund's non-fundamental investment policy limiting investments in a single issuer to up to 15% of the Fund's total assets, measured at the time of investment. Under the amended investment policy, for investments in any affiliated private investment fund or vehicle in which the Fund has invested, the 15% limit shall apply to the Fund's proportionate interest in the portfolio securities held by such investment fund or vehicle. The amended investment policy will enable the Fund to invest a greater portion of its total assets in the Templeton China Opportunities Fund, Ltd., a Cayman Islands Exempt Company which holds China A shares directly and serves as an investment vehicle through which U.S. registered Franklin Templeton funds can gain exposure to the China A Share market.

Management believes that this change will be beneficial to the Fund and its shareholders because it provides the Fund with greater flexibility to pursue its investment objective of long-term capital appreciation. Under normal market conditions, the Fund invests at least 45% of its total assets in equity securities of China companies. In order to gain exposure to Chinese equity securities, the Fund currently may invest directly in H shares (shares of China-incorporated, Hong Kong Stock Exchange listed companies), B shares (shares that trade on the Shanghai or Shenzhen stock exchanges in either U.S. or Hong Kong dollars) and red chips (shares of Hong Kong Stock Exchange listed companies with significant exposure to China). Management believes adding China A shares to the Fund's investment universe will expand the investment opportunities for Fund shareholders.

Share Repurchase Program

The Fund's Board previously authorized the Fund to repurchase up to 10% of the Fund's outstanding shares in open-market transactions, at the discretion of management. This authorization remains in effect.

In exercising its discretion consistent with its portfolio management responsibilities, the investment manager will take into account various other factors, including, but not limited to, the level of the discount, the Fund's performance, portfolio holdings, dividend history, market conditions, cash on hand, the availability of other attractive investments and whether the sale of certain portfolio securities would be undesirable because of liquidity concerns or because the sale might subject the Fund to adverse tax consequences. Any repurchases would be made on a national securities exchange at the prevailing market price, subject to exchange requirements, Federal securities laws and rules that restrict repurchases, and the terms of any outstanding leverage or borrowing of the Fund. If and when the Fund's 10% threshold is reached, no further repurchases could be completed until authorized by the Board. Until the 10% threshold is reached, Fund management will have the flexibility to commence share repurchases if and when it is determined to be appropriate in light of prevailing circumstances. The share repurchase program is intended to benefit shareholders by enabling the Fund to repurchase shares at a discount to net asset value, thereby increasing the proportionate interest of each remaining shareholder in the Fund.

In the Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements section, please see note 2 (Capital Stock) for additional information regarding shares repurchased.
