SHAREHOLDERS TO SUPPORT CROWN CRAFTS SLATE OF TRULY INDEPENDENT, HIGHLY QUALIFIED DIRECTOR CANDIDATES

Gonzales, Louisiana Crown Crafts, Inc. (the Company) (NASDAQ-CM: CRWS) today issued a letter to all shareholders in connection with the election of directors at the Company's annual meeting of shareholders to be held on August 10, 2010.

Commenting on the current proxy fight instigated by the New York-based investment fund Wynnefield Partners Small Cap Value L.P. and certain affiliates (the Wynnefield Group), E. Randall Chestnut, the Company's Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, said, "Engaging shareholders in a constructive, productive manner has been and will always be a top priority for Crown Crafts. With regard to this particular investor, we have tried our best to reach out to, and have a regular dialogue with, them. We have acted prudently on their input when we believed it to be in the best interest of all our shareholders. Unfortunately, it has been our view that, in many cases, the Wynnefield Group has acted more as an antagonistic investor with capricious and self-serving demands. Given the lack of support they have demonstrated for their own previous nominees, it makes us truly wonder if they can ever be satisfied. The following is the letter the Company's Board sent to Crown Crafts shareholders:

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM YOUR BOARD OF DIRECTORS

July 22, 2010

Dear Fellow Crown Crafts Shareholders:

We take shareholder concerns very seriously and have consistently made shareholder engagement a priority through open communications. In particular, we have tried our best to reach out to, and have a regular dialogue with, Wynnefield Partners Small Cap Value, L.P. and certain of its affiliates (the Wynnefield Group), who have chosen to engage the Company in yet another costly proxy battle. We have acted prudently on the Wynnefield Group's input when we believed it to be constructive and in the best interest of all our shareholders. In many cases, however, the Wynnefield Group has acted more as an antagonistic investor with capricious and self-serving demands. Consider the following chronology and see if you agree with our view that the Wynnefield Group can never be satisfied.

2004: At the request of the Wynnefield Group, which is Crown Crafts' largest shareholder, the Company hired an investment banker to evaluate the repurchase of warrants held by the Company's lenders. The investment bankers proposed that the Company repurchase the warrants for more than $4.5 million, including investment banker fees. The Wynnefield Group supported the repurchase at that price. Luckily for the Company's shareholders, the Company's lenders rejected the offer at that time. Ultimately, the Company, without hiring an investment banker or paying anything to repurchase the warrants, completed a debt and capital restructuring in 2006. This restructuring not only eliminated all the outstanding warrants held by the lenders, thus saving shareholders more than $4.5 million compared with the bankers' prior proposal, but also resulted in the lenders forgiving $4 million of the Company's debt. This, however, was not enough to appease the Wynnefield Group.

2005: Your Board agreed to allow Frederick Wasserman, who was handpicked by the Wynnefield Group, to participate in all Board meetings as a non-voting observer. The Board welcomed the opportunity to hear an additional independent viewpoint and provide greater insight about the business to a representative of a key shareholder. This was still not enough for the Wynnefield Group.

2007: The Wynnefield Group launched its first proxy contest against Crown Crafts by nominating Mr. Wasserman and Nelson Obus, a principal of the Wynnefield Group who had been named a month earlier as a defendant in an enforcement proceeding brought by the Securities and Exchange Commission that is still pending in federal court in New York. After the Company received notice of these nominations, the Board terminated Mr. Wasserman's status as a non-voting observer. At the annual meeting, our shareholders elected Mr. Wasserman but defeated Mr. Obus. Also in 2007, at the urging of the Wynnefield Group, the Board authorized a stock repurchase program under which the Company repurchased 914,051 shares of stock from August 2007 to August 2009 for a total price of $3.1 million (average price of $3.40 per share). All of this was still not enough for the Wynnefield Group.

2008: Faced with the Wynnefield Group's threats of another proxy fight in 2008, your Board agreed to appoint Joseph Kling as a director and support his election at the 2008 annual meeting of shareholders in exchange for a two-year standstill agreement with the Wynnefield

Group. James Verbrugge, a director since 2001, agreed to resign from the Board at that time to make space for Mr. Kling. With two handpicked members on the seven-member Board, this gave the Wynnefield Group 29% representation on the Board, even though it then held less than 16% of the common shares of the Company. At the same time, the Company formed a Strategic Review Committee, which included Mr. Wasserman as a member, to consider all strategic options available to the Company to enhance shareholder value. Even this was not enough for the Wynnefield Group.

2010: With Mr. Wasserman's term and the standstill agreement expiring, the Wynnefield Group has now initiated yet another costly and distracting proxy contest naming two candidates who we believe are less qualified to represent Crown Crafts than your Board-supported nominees. Curiously, the Wynnefield Group chose not to re-nominate Mr. Wasserman who voted with the majority of the Board more than 92% of the time during his three-year term. Further, the Wynnefield Group also suggested that Mr. Kling step down from the Board after he has voted with the majority more than 94% of the time since his election and that the Board elect a different handpicked representative of the Wynnefield Group to serve as a director in his place. Did the Wynnefield Group make this suggestion because Mr. Kling supports our agenda, our strategic plan and our nominees, not theirs? What does the Wynnefield Group truly want from the Company?

In its July 19, 2010 communication to Crown Crafts shareholders, the Wynnefield Group declares, "...we have had enough. But we are the ones who have had enough. We believe that the Wynnefield Group will never have enough until its own ever-changing, narrow, self-serving and short-sighted agenda is completed.

YOUR BOARD REFUSES TO BE INTIMIDATED AND WILL CONTINUE PURSUING ITS STRATEGY TO CREATE LONG-TERM VALUE IN THE BEST INTERESTS OF ALL SHAREHOLDERS

Following a thorough evaluation of all alternatives by the Strategic Review Committee, your Board unanimously approved the Company's current strategic growth plan and concluded that it is the best alternative available to the Company to create long-term value for all our shareholders. Our strategy is generating results we have delivered strong cash flow and adjusted EBITDA and raised shareholders equity by 23% in fiscal 2010. Your Board also has instituted payment of a quarterly dividend which, at its current level, is enough by itself to provide the Wynnefield Group with an attractive 8.9% annual return on their investment. With an enviable balance sheet and the three accretive acquisitions we have completed within the past three years, your Company is well-positioned to continue its successful strategic trajectory of long-term profitable growth.

YOUR BOARD-SUPPORTED NOMINEES E. RANDALL CHESTNUT, WILLIAM T. DEYO, JR., SIDNEY KIRSCHNER AND RICHARD L. SOLAR ARE HIGHLY QUALIFIED STEWARDS OF YOUR INVESTMENT AND ARE FULLY COMMITTED TO DILIGENTLY PURSUING OUR SUCCESSFUL GROWTH STRATEGY AND ACTING IN THE BEST LONG-TERM INTERESTS OF ALL SHAREHOLDERS

Your Board firmly believes that the best path to maximize value for all shareholders is the continued execution of our strategic plan. This is not the time to disrupt our operations or distract our employees with concerns about the Company's direction. This is the time to grow our Company with the leadership of an experienced Board and management team.
