Subject: AnalogicTech to be Acquired by Skyworks Solutions

Dear Employees,

I am delighted to inform you that today we announced an agreement to be acquired by Skyworks Solutions, Inc. This is an outstanding transaction for our customers, our employees and, most importantly, our shareholders. As you probably know, Skyworks is one of the fastest growing analog semiconductor companies in the world.

This highly synergistic transaction combines Skyworks' existing leadership position in front-end solutions that support smart phones, tablets, energy management and infrastructure applications, with our innovative power management solutions for the consumer electronics, computing and communications markets. By leveraging Skyworks' scale and extensive product portfolio, we can better address our customers' demand for highly integrated PMIC solutions across a broader range of applications, particularly as they increasingly demand both always-on wireless connectivity and power efficiency across seemingly every kind of mobile platform. Both companies share a common vision and realize the enormity and growth potential of the analog power management semiconductor market. I am especially excited to see us join forces.

We expect to close in late summer and I ask for your full support as we launch the integration planning process, which is being led by Tony Alvarez and Steve Machuga from Skyworks.

Please plan on joining me and members of Skyworks' senior management team for an all employee communications meeting that will be held on Thursday, June 2 at 5:00 p.m. Pacific time and be Webcast internationally.

Thank you and congratulations,

Richard Williams
