The offering price of the offered shares from time to time will be determined by the selling stockholders and, at the time of determination, may be higher or lower than the market price of the common stock as quoted on the New York Stock Exchange. In connection with an underwritten offering, underwriters or agents may receive compensation in the form of discounts, concessions or commissions from a selling stockholder or from purchasers of offered shares for whom they act as agents. Broker-dealers acting as principals or agents may receive compensation in the form of discounts, concessions or commissions from a selling stockholder or from purchasers of offered shares for whom they act as agents. The methods by which the offered shares may be sold include:

- a cross or block trade in which the broker-dealer so engaged will attempt to sell the offered shares as agent but may position and resell a portion of the block as principal to facilitate the transaction;

The selling stockholders and any underwriters, dealers or agents participating in a distribution of the offered shares may be deemed to be underwriters within the meaning of the Securities Act, and any profit on the sale of the offered shares by the selling stockholders and commissions received by such broker-dealers may be deemed to be underwriting commissions under the Securities Act.

When the selling stockholder elects to make a particular offer of shares, a prospectus supplement, if required, will be distributed which will identify any underwriters, dealers or agents and any discounts, commissions and other terms constituting compensation from the selling stockholder and any other required information.

To comply with applicable state securities laws in certain states, the offered shares may be sold in such states only through registered or licensed brokers or dealers.
