Welcome to the online resource center for the proposed combination of Cigna and Anthem.

On July 24, 2015, we announced the agreement to form a premier global health service company, with the right mix of capabilities to deliver greater choice, access and affordability to meet the challenges of a new era. This move is consistent with our long history of evolving through combinations, acquisitions, new businesses in new geographies and other initiatives, all driven by the ever-changing needs of our customers and clients.

For now, both companies will remain separate and independent and conduct business as usual until necessary reviews are complete and the combination is approved, which we expect to be in the second half of 2016.

The content on this page will be updated as we have new information to share related to the combination. We will keep the information timely and fresh, and will send periodic updates via email. Bookmark the site and check back for updates.

Cigna has a proud history of serving customers dating back to our predecessor companies nearly 200 years ago. While our current company is only about 35 years old, we and the teams of employees before us have succeeded because we excel at transforming service companies to meet the evolving needs of consumers.

Our DNA as an organization that succeeds in dynamic environments goes back for generations, and we are experiencing the most dynamic marketplace in decades: the development of the Affordable Care Act's public exchanges; the implementation of private exchanges; the rapid growth of subsidized cooperatives; the shift from fee-for-service to value-based care reimbursement arrangements; the growth of care provider insurance networks; the introduction of new Internet-based business insurance models; and consolidation in our distribution channels and among hospitals and health care professionals, pharmaceutical companies, medical device companies, and most recently, in our space. Today, we are proud of what we have achieved: our company has the most valuable footprint in its history, and I am confident that together, we will continue to succeed because we believe in the journey that we're on to improve the health, well-being and sense of security of those we serve – every day.

Now, we have the opportunity...by agreeing to combine with Anthem to redouble our efforts to build a global health care service company and be an accelerant for improving health care and related services in markets around the world. As a result of our combination, customers will have access to higher-quality products, lower prices and increased choice.

We know that you will have a lot of questions about the announcement of the proposed combination with Anthem and what it means to all of us. High on that list will be: "What does this mean for me?" While we do not have all the answers at this time, we will do our best to keep you informed throughout the process. Here is what we know:

- The closing of this transaction is likely to be in the second half of 2016, and the companies will remain separate and independent until then. Many things need to occur before the closing, including securing necessary regulatory and shareholder approvals. During this time, it will be business as usual for Cigna on its own, and there will be no integration between the two companies.
- It is too soon to discuss plans for job eliminations as a result of the combination. In the future, management will assess business needs and determine any workforce adjustments that may be necessary.
- We anticipate that employees who currently are enrolled in Cigna benefit plans will remain in our benefit plans until at least the January following the year of closing. This means that employees will most likely continue to participate in our plans through at least 2017.

Visit Your Cigna Life for updates, we will keep you posted as decisions are made and plans emerge.

There is strong equity in the Cigna brand and the combined company will continue to use the Cigna brand across key markets, products and services.

20. Will there be changes to the structure of Cigna, or will it operate as it has in the past?

21. As a result of the combination, will there be real estate consolidation and/or will any Cigna or Anthem offices relocate?

- Both companies will continue to operate separately and independently until reviews are satisfactorily complete and the combination closes. There are no plans to relocate any employees at this time. As the integration plans progress into 2016 and beyond, and as opportunities for employees and businesses are identified, we will re-evaluate the real estate portfolio and provide you with updated information.
