T-Mobile, Sprint Deal Runs Into Resistance From DOJ Antitrust Staff

DOJ staff told wireless rivals deal is unlikely to be approved as structured, according to people familiar with the matter

By Drew FitzGerald and Brent Kendall, The Wall Street Journal, April 16, 2019

Justice Department staffers have told T-Mobile US Inc. TMUS and Sprint Corp. S that their planned merger is unlikely to be approved as currently structured, according to people familiar with the matter, casting doubt on the fate of the $26 billion deal.

The nation's third- and fourth-biggest carriers by subscribers are facing challenges on several fronts, but their most immediate hurdle comes from the Justice Department's antitrust division, which is considering whether the deal would present an unacceptable threat to competition.

In a meeting earlier this month, Justice Department staff members laid out their concerns with the all-stock deal and questioned the companies' arguments that the combination would produce important efficiencies for the merged firm, the people said.

Representatives for T-Mobile and Sprint had no immediate comment. A Justice Department spokesman wasn't immediately available.
